

PACIFIC BATTLE COSTS U. S. SIX WARSHIPS

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THEY SAY it's an ill wind that blows nobody good, but the only comfort the Japanese can get out of the Yankee hurricane which they ran into off the Philippine archipelago is that their disaster was no worse.

With more facts about this historic engagement at hand—though the story is far from complete—we can say with assurance that the Japanese have suffered not only a major defeat but a decisive one. It's decisive in that it guarantees the Allies success in the great and difficult battle of the Philippines. And since these islands are the key to the war in the Pacific, we know that this conflict will be greatly shortened.

Japan's navy, which was estimated to total about 200 ships before the current engagement, has been crippled. It's back has been broken by the heavy loss in capital ships.

The Japs lost more than 27 important ships—how many more remains to be confirmed. These included 10 battleships which Secretary of the Navy Forrestal estimates as representing two-thirds of all Japan had of these Leviathans.

It may help us to assess the full significance of the catastrophe that has overtaken the Mikado's navy if we recall what happened to it at Pearl Harbor in 1941. The brigands from the Orient sank or damaged 18 of our warships and eight of these were battleships. That pretty well hamstrung us in the Pacific for a long time, and vastly contributed to the enemy success in overrunning strategic islands.

Well, that's the misfortune—multiplied—which now has been handed back to the Japanese. But their position is desperate, for they have lost the resources to recover from the blow on the United States. They no longer are capable of facing the American naval forces for the Pacific fleet has several times the numerical strength of the best that Japan can muster. Not only that, but the British admiralty announced the other day that it had started to move into the Orient a huge fleet capable of giving battle to the entire Japanese navy—and this was before the Japs suffered disaster off the Philippines.

What chance has the Japanese fleet in face of all this? I think we may expect it to pull out of the South China sea and return to the defensive. Probably much of it will be retained in home waters to defend the motherland against the

More, Better Toys For Season Are Predicted

COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—There will be more and better quality toys this Christmas than last, and what's more, they'll be cheaper, Frank J. Massaro, head of the Columbus District OPA's durable goods section, reported today.

Many woodworking shops, competing government contractors, have veered into toy manufacturing, thus increasing the supply over last year's, and the War Production Board has made available some previously banned materials, Massaro said.

The "slightly lower" prices are due to a new OPA pricing method which went into effect last March, Massaro explained.

MOSCOW TRIP BY CHURCHILL MISSES GOAL

Russian - Polish Dispute Is Unsettled; Other Agreements Reached

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 27.—Prime Minister Churchill told commons today "a very good working agreement" had been reached with Russia on the problems of southeastern Europe, but acknowledged his efforts to end the Russian-Polish dispute, prime objective of his mission to Moscow, had not proved successful.

Likening himself to a wandering minstrel of diplomacy, Churchill said he and President Roosevelt should confer with Marshal Stalin before the year ends. But he declared that "all is solid, sure and sound" among the three Allies.

The prime minister summed up the results of his conferences with Stalin as "highly satisfactory" and underscored the necessity for dispelling misunderstandings and forestalling them before they occur.

"I am quite sure," he added, "that no final result can be obtained until the heads of the three governments have met together as I earnestly trust they may do before this year is out."

"A Quebec," he said, "the President and I felt very much the absence of Russia. At Moscow, Marshal Stalin and I were deeply conscious that the President was not with us although in this case the American observer, Mr. Averell Harriman, the accomplished ambassador of the United States, made us feel at all times the presence of the great republic."

On last Lap in Europe
In one of the shortest efforts he has ever made after a major conference, Churchill spoke only about 30 minutes. Commons granted his previously expressed plea that it refrain from using the report as the basis for a separate policy debate.

He touched briefly on the military situation.

Asserting that "we are in the last lap" of the European war, Churchill declared:

"Let all hope die in German breasts that there will be the slightest division or weakening among the forces that are crowding in upon them and will crush the life out of their resistance."

While he said recognition of the French provisional government heralded return of France to "her rightful and historic role on the world stage," Churchill declared that the future of the world in the

MANY TAKE PART IN CHEST CLINIC

Widespread interest in the work of the chest X-ray survey being held here is evidenced by the large number of persons who received chest X-rays yesterday. The survey is held to discover sufferers of tuberculosis in the early curable stages of the disease.

One hundred and thirty-five workers at Columbia Lamp and Church Budget plants participated, including all but three of the employees of the former company and all men workers at the latter plant.

At the public headquarters in the Ohio-Edison building last night X-rays were made for 339 men and women, a large number for the opening public X-ray period.

Today the technicians and officials of the Columbiana County Public Health league which is sponsoring the survey, X-rayed workers of the Salem Engineering Co. and from 1 to 5 p. m. Saturday will hold the closing session for the general public. Anyone interested in having an X-ray made should be at the headquarters in the Ohio-Edison building tomorrow. The service is entirely without charge and results are sent to the subject through the mail. The project is financed by the county health league through the annual sale of Christmas Seals.

Lisbon Extends War Fund Drive; Goal Short $2,345

LISBON, Oct. 27.—Chairman George Lafferty of Lisbon's National War Fund drive announced last evening that the amount raised toward the goal of $6,250 is $3,904.04, which leaves $2,345.96 to be raised.

Although the drive was to end today, Lafferty said that due to the slow returns from the rural districts the drive would continue for several days and that any one who have been missed can leave their contributions at either of the Lisbon banks.

Mayor Evens Score With Sailor Jailed By Police

Being arrested on an intoxication charge by police and a night in jail proved expensive for Lyle McCloskey of Ravenswood, W. Va., a sailor, as he was fined on three charges today by Mayor R. R. Johnson.

Jailed after being arrested, McCloskey proceeded to damage the inside of the jail considerably and even threatened violence to police and city officials, including the mayor, whom he chased out of the jail "bull pen."

This morning he was fined on three charges by the mayor—one on a disorderly conduct charge which cost him $1 and costs, another for malicious destruction of property was worth $20 and costs, and intoxication penalized him $5 and costs. He pleaded guilty to all three charges.

GERMANS FACE BRITISH TRAP

Advance Beyond Tilburg Wedges Von Model's Battered Army

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 27.—Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's five-day British offensive surged toward the Maas (Meuse) today in a three-mile advance which undercut the doomed enemy citadel of Tilburg in Holland.

Dempsey's armor knifed forward to Loon Op Zand, four miles north of Tilburg, butting the German's main escape route, and was riding roughshod over badly armed rear guards.

Field Marshal G. von Model's forces "face the grave prospect of a sequel to the Falaise debacle that resulted in the annihilation of Von Kluge's German Seventh army in the Normandy campaign," said Associated Press Correspondent Roger D. Greene in a dispatch from the front.

Thousands of British troops in the first American amphibious landing employed in numbers on the front swarmed across the three to five-mile wide schelde in a fog-shrouded dawn yesterday and established a seven-mile-square beachhead on South Beveland island guarding the north side of the river.

Counter-blow fails
Desperately attempting to divert the blows menacing his forces in western Holland, Von Model struck out with a counter-attack along a 10-mile front against the eastern side of the British Nijmegen salient, between Venlo and Roermond, but field dispatches said the Allied front was not displaced.

Berlin accounts said this bridgehead was "several kilometers deep" and was in the neighborhood of Heerdekenkerke, 5½ miles ahead of Canadian spearheads driving into the island from the east.

A second attempt to land several thousand troops in American amphibious tanks and landing craft at Hansweert, to the east of this bridgehead and across the South Beveland canal just ahead of the Canadian spearhead was broken up this morning, the Germans declared.

The British, after a 15-mile westward drive in five days from their Nijmegen salient, had hemmed the Germans into a collapsing box and were smashing toward the Maas.

NAVY WILL RETAIN ITS CANTON PLANT

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Oct. 27.—The Navy announced today that naval ordnance plants at Canton, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Forest Park, Ill.; and Indianapolis, Ind., would be retained as a part of the permanent ordnance shore establishments of the Navy.

A policy statement to employees by the Navy department Bureau of Ordnance said new naval ordnance plants were operated through commercial contractors, instead of directly, but congressional authorization limited such contractor-operated arrangements to the period of the war and six months thereafter.

It added that no prediction could be made as to the probable date of conversion to government operation, but that the department intended "to effect conversion to a civil service basis as soon as it is economically feasible and in the best interest of the government to do so."

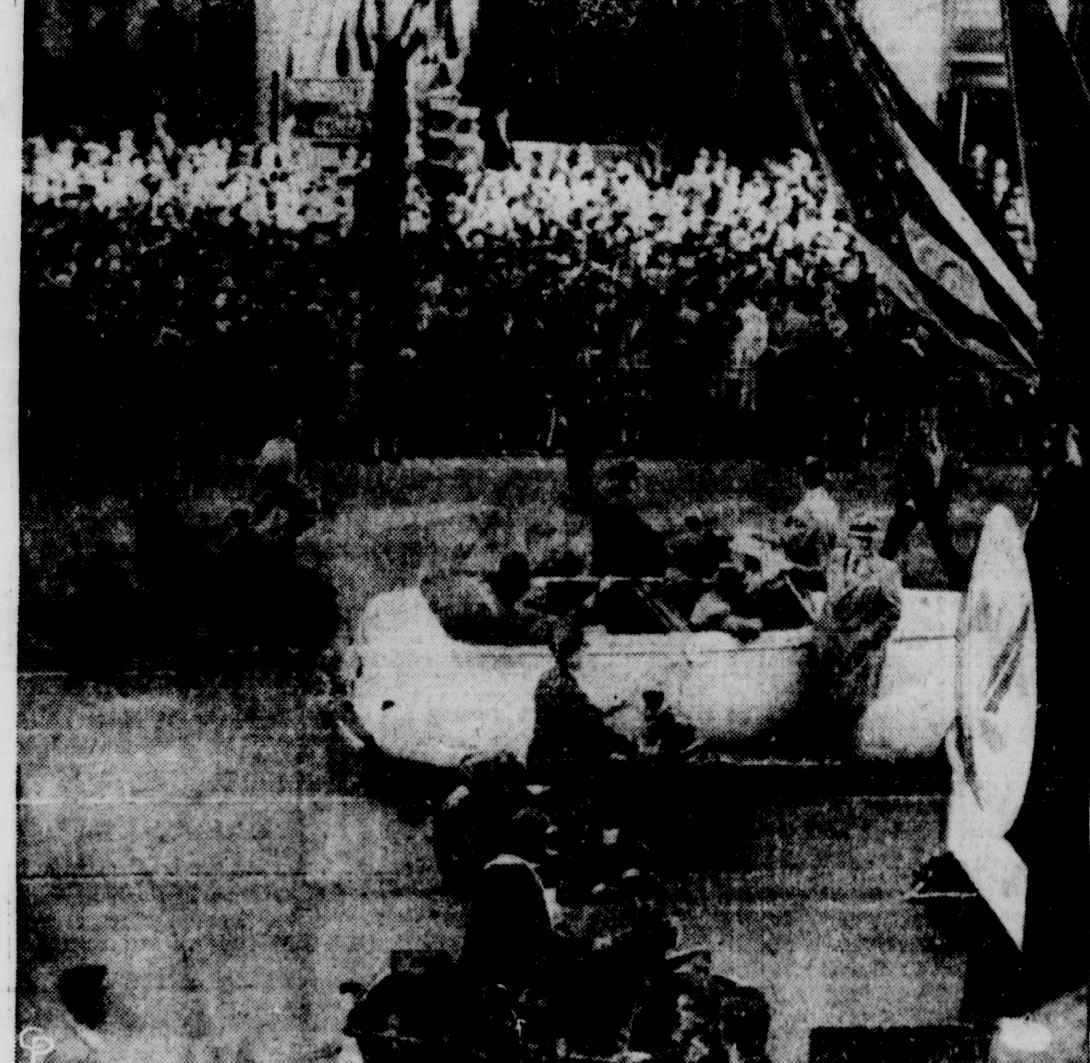

No One Hurt When Car Rams Rear of Trailer

Harold Seibert, 50, of New Philadelphia, crashed into the rear of a parked trailer and truck, driven by Charles Cole, 32, of Warren, at 7:55 p. m. yesterday one mile and one-half north of Route 165 on Route 45.

Cole's car and the two-wheeled trailer attached to Cole's truck were damaged considerably. No one was injured, state patrolmen said.

Two Sons Wounded, Columbiana Father Learns In Telegrams

COLUMBIANA, Oct. 27.—Walter Echard, 107 W. Park ave., has received two telegrams from the War department, telling of the wounding of two of his sons. The first word stated that his son, Corp. Raymond Echard, was slightly wounded in action in Italy Oct. 6. Raymond, 20, is with the 351st infantry and was taking part in his second major battle when wounded. He has been overseas about three months. He is a graduate of Columbiana High school and prior to entering the service was employed by the Columbiana Boiler Co. He received his basic training in Texas and was then sent overseas.

The second telegram, received three days later, stated that Pfc. Walter Echard, 23, was seriously wounded in action in France Oct. 9. Pfc. Echard is in the 101st infantry. He entered the service in 1942 and received his training in North and South Carolina and Tennessee and left this country about two months ago. Prior to entering the service he was employed by the National Rubber Machine Co.

Another son, Tech. Sgt. John Echard, is with the ground crew of a B-29 Bomber group stationed in India. He entered the service in December, 1939, and spent 27 months in Panama, after which he was home on furlough and later sent to India. He formerly was employed by the Columbiana Boiler Co.

President Off For Two Day Campaign; Bricker Speaks

By J. W. DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer
President Roosevelt, off on another oldtime electioneering trip, chose for the topic of his speech tonight (9 p. m. EWT, CBS-MBS) at Philadelphia: The New Deal and business.

Like most other things in this presidential campaign, it is one on which partisans differ keenly. For example:

Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, the Republican vice presidential nominee, told an Enid, Okla., audience that "if the New Deal wants to extend the wartime controls, it will find some authority in the language of statutes to do so, and besides it has a new deal attorney general and Supreme court to help it."

But ex-chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said in a broadcast from Washington, "The President encouraged and supported the WPB in its policy of fair play for business. We used our powers sparingly and only for essential war purposes. The president has the know-how for great leadership."

Bricker will speak again tonight, over NBC from Kansas City at 10:30 p. m. EWT, on "the record of President Roosevelt in international relations and in national defense."

The word businessmen dislike especially—"bankrupt"—came into a radio debate at New York between Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Interior Secretary Ickes.

Japanese Navy Losses Soaring To New Mark

(By Associated Press)
U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 27.—A Japanese naval disaster, threatening momentarily to surpass Nippon's 35-warship tragedy of 1942 off Guadalcanal, stemmed today from an amazing gamble which actually succeeded in getting enemy warships perilously close to America's invasion beaches on Leyte.

The confirmed sinking or damaging of 27 warships, including three carriers and 10 battleships in a trio of naval-air encounters off the Philippines, tells a far from completed story.

Remnants of the once proud Imperial fleet which, it now can be disclosed, actually penetrated Leyte gulf and attacked transports engaged in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's landings, still were under relentless air pursuit. MacArthur announced today his land-based Liberators have damaged an enemy light cruiser in the Mindanao sea.

Fleets Split Up
But, without the continuing achievements, the already accomplished blows promise to lift Japan's losses beyond the 35 warships sunk or damaged off Guadalcanal in November, 1942.

Several enemy destroyers are known to have gone down which are not included in the confirmed 27.

Today, Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid, whose outnumbered Seventh fleet turned the tide from threatened disaster into history-making triumph in Leyte gulf, made clear much more remains to be catalogued officially.

It was Kinkaid who split up his fleet, took on two enemy warship forces converging on the Leyte invasion scene and trounced both submarines and warships while carrier planes of Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., Third fleet surprised and dealt mortal blows on enemy flotillas attempting a sneak punch from Formosa waters.

Today Kinkaid told Dean Schneider, Associated Press war correspondent in the Philippines that the Japanese risked from 39 to 46 warships in the two battles near Leyte and only 20 retired. That general summary suggested from 19 to 26 enemy ships were bagged, although it did not differentiate between sunk and damaged. But the 20 which got away were pursued by planes and, doubtless as yet undisclosed damage was heaped on them.

MacArthur-Nimitz communicates on the two battles near Leyte, plus a flagship dispatch from Rear Adm. Daniel Barbey, listed 14 enemy warships confirmed as sunk or damaged in those two battles.

NAVY REPORTS ITS LOSSES IN VITAL ACTION

Three Carrier Vessels, Two Destroyers, Escort Ship Sunk

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—American losses in defeating the Japanese navy in the battle of the Philippines totaled six warships—the Aircraft Carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, two destroyers and a destroyer escort.

Names of the vessels, except the Princeton, which were lost in sinking or damaging at least 27 Japanese warships, were not disclosed in the Navy's brief communique today, pending notification of next of kin of casualties aboard the ships.

No details, the Navy said, are yet available on circumstances of the loss of the ships, which probably carried a total of about 3,900 men.

A large portion of this total personnel was aboard the Light Carrier Princeton from which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, has said more than 1,300 officers and men were rescued.

Other War Losses Shown
The lost carrier escorts each carried a complement of probably 1,000 men, and each had a squadron of more than 21 planes.

Destroyers carry a normal complement of about 200 men, and destroyer escorts about 100.

The six losses raise to 170 the number of warships definitely listed as sunk since the war started.

In addition 38 American vessels are overdue and presumed lost. They include 27 submarines, and nine ships destroyed to prevent capture. The total of ships overdue or destroyed consequently comes to 217.

Japanese losses in the battle which cost the six ships, with official reports still incomplete are:

Two carriers, five cruisers and one battleship definitely sunk; one carrier and two battleships probably sunk; and seven battleships, four cruisers, four destroyers and "several" more destroyers damaged. This makes a total of 26, plus the "several destroyers." Another cruiser subsequently was reported hit, bringing the toll to 27.

Hanoverton Soldier, Guadalcanal Veteran Is Glad To Be Home

Pfc. Howard E. Logue, 21, son of Mrs. Sadie M. Logue of Hanoverton, has returned to this country on a 30-day furlough after 33 months service overseas, most of which was spent in the original battles for Guadalcanal.

Reluctant to talk regarding his battle experiences, Pfc. Logue can only say that he is plenty glad to be home and feels "darned lucky to have come through it all without injury."

Although he was never wounded in battle, Pfc. Logue did suffer a three weeks' layoff because of tropical fever and experienced plenty of difficulty with Jap tree snipers.

A member of the famed "Old Ninth" and the 24th Coastal artillery, the Hanoverton soldier was sent first to Australia and later to New Caledonia, where he was stationed for further tropical training for seven and a half months.

He enlisted in the army June 8, 1940, and was sent overseas from the Brooklyn Army base Jan. 23, 1942. His present trip home is the first visit here in better than two and half years.

Battery "F", of which Pfc. Logue was a member, was among the first wave of Marines and soldiers to land on Guadalcanal Nov. 2, 1942, and they stayed in the thick of battle with their effective artillery fire until the island was secured on Feb. 9, 1943.

Following a 30-day furlough, Pfc. Hogue says he is to return to Milne bay, New Guinea, to take up duties with his outfit once again. He is spending part of his time here with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barborak of the Goshen road.

Alliance Soldier Killed

ALLIANCE, Oct. 27.—Pfc. Warren R. Hartuff, who received the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in France July 1, was killed in action in that country Oct. 10, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hartuff of nearby Freeburg, were informed today.

He entered the armed forces in 1943 and went overseas last April. A brother, Lawrence, is with the navy in the Southwest Pacific.

Two Salem Men Are Missing, Third Wounded

Pvt. Alex Fratila, Jr., Pvt. Alvin Cocos and Pvt. Miner A. Reed, all of Salem, are among the city's latest war casualties. Pvt. Fratila, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fratila, 794 S. Broadway, and Pvt. Cocos, son of Mrs. Edith McKenzie, 442 S. Ellsworth ave., are listed as missing in action in France, while Pvt. Reed, husband of Mrs. Elwanda Reed of Summit st., has been wounded in action in Germany.

Pvt. Fratila, an infantryman, has been overseas since August after training at Camp Wolters, Tex. Pvt. Cocos trained at Fort Meade, Md., and was sent overseas three months ago. Pvt. Reed trained in this country from September, 1943, until July, when he was sent to England and from there to France and Germany.

Government By A Grand Pooh-Bah

Gov. Dewey's Minneapolis speech is a hard and accurate poke in the midriff of Mr. Roosevelt's bogus claims to mastery of foreign relations.

Gov. Dewey asserts—and it cannot be denied—that Mr. Roosevelt does not now and cannot in the future command support in congress. He is running for reelection as an individual, not as the leader of a government.

He has had no teamwork, obviously wants none. As far as foreign policy is concerned, it is unlikely that if he were reelected he could lead even his own party, much less command the confidence of the opposition.

Gov. Dewey wants comity of nations as much as Mr. Roosevelt. He expressed the confidence that congress would find a way of delegating to the American member of the new League of Nations whatever power of decision may be necessary to meet the urgencies of international agreements. Like Mr. Roosevelt, he recognized the need of this authority but, unlike Mr. Roosevelt, he considers it a congressional prerogative to effectuate such authority.

In calmly expressing himself on the question, Gov. Dewey met the challenge of Sen. Joe Ball, Minnesota's confused young senator whose political switch so recently gave the New Dealers a thrill.

This whole matter of confidence and its bearing on government in 1945, 1946, 1947 and 1948 seems to us the realistic nub of the election. Gov. Dewey could lead a government for the next four years. Mr. Roosevelt could lead nothing but the job-tailed conglomeration of peevish minorities hanging on his coat-tails—and a set of coat-tails is not a government.

We will not get what we want abroad or at home by relying on a grand pooh-bah, but by calling our collective talents to the task. Gov. Dewey's position on this point is unassailable. He stands for government by the people; Mr. Roosevelt, on his record and lately on his word, stands for government by a continuation of pooh-bahism into the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th years. And that, as Gov. Dewey says, is another reason why it's time for a change—the main reason.

Half-Truths

Those who have heard Mr. Roosevelt in recent speeches and on the radio have heard him dealing in half-truths. He has found this reprehensible when it could be pinned on others; it is just as reprehensible when Mr. Roosevelt indulges in the practice.

With reference to the naval disarmament conference in 1921, he said: "Much of the strength of our navy . . . was scuttled and some of the navy's resources were handed over to friends in private industry—as in the unforgettable case of Teapot Dome."

In the first instance, the naval disarmament conference was called in good faith for the sake of promoting world peace. An agreement was effected to place the navies of the world on the well-known 5-5-3 ratio, five British and five American warships to three for Japan.

That was not "scuttling" in the way Mr. Roosevelt implied. It was, in fact, a major part of the disarmament program in the wake of World War I and seemed to hold forth some promise of keeping the world out of a race toward new wars.

Mr. Roosevelt omitted also the fact that the Democratic party in congress voted solidly for the naval limitation and that he, himself, later at the Democratic nation convention, helped pass a resolution denouncing the Harding administration for not having "scuttled" more ships in 1921.

In the second instance, the Teapot Dome transfer of oil lands, he neglected to add that the Republican administration of Calvin Coolidge prosecuted the cases and kept the oil in governmental hands and that all of it has remained available to the navy, untouched.

He has commended Secretary Stimson's outspoken protest against the Japanese adventure in Manchuria in 1931, which, he declared, might have "averted this very war" if the nations had dealt with it as Stimson advocated. But he failed to mention that Mr. Stimson was, in that day, secretary of state in the cabinet of a Republican, Herbert Hoover, and that he had Mr. Hoover's full support, but that his Manchurian policy could not be effectuated because Britain refused to cooperate, not because isolationism controlled our government.

Mr. Roosevelt has taken a great deal of credit for the good neighbor policy toward Latin America. He neglects to observe that the foundations for this excellent program were laid by Mr. Hoover.

Constitutional Amendments

Voters who do not prepare themselves in advance with information about the two proposed constitutional amendments on the ballot Nov. 7 will be unable to understand the propositions on the spot. They are too involved.

As explained by the Judicial Council of Ohio, whose president is Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the state supreme court, the purpose of the proposal to amend Sec. 2 of Art. IV of the state constitution is to insure litigants that in case of the supreme court being deprived of the services of one or more justices either the chief justice or the senior justice may direct any judge of any court of appeals to fill the vacancy for any designated case.

The proposal to amend Sec. 6, Art. IV, would bring about certain claimed improvements in appellate court procedure and empower the legislature to confer appellate jurisdiction upon the courts of appeals in districts where controversy arose to review final orders of boards, commissions or officers. Both proposals are technical in nature, and while they may be adopted by the electorate, its failure to adopt them would not be a sign of disagreement so much as a sign of confusion. Apparently, both are worth reforms and should be given affirmative votes on election day.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, October 28

A DIFFICULT and trying day, in which a concentrated focusing of all the faculties and forces, which luckily are well stimulated for astute, shrewd and clever attack, on stubborn, erratic and unsuspected situations, is needed.

Only well-organized strategies, sagacious plans and a keen insight into underlying dangers, may turn threats of utter defeat into a notable success over all sorts of trials and adversities. Calm, clever and determined action, possibly inspired by intuition or other subtle insight, may save the day. But refrain from worry and rash moves which might aggravate complications. Conserve funds, strength, and be not depressed by overwhelming odds, as favorable change is at hand.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which the fortunate outcome depends upon the sagacity, shrewd judgment, well laid plans and cleverly developed ideas, which may be born of intuition or inner urges. Patience, tact, poise and deep study of difficulties, together with conserving resources, funds, physical strength, and refraining from rash and erratic tactics, may eventually culminate in surprising progress.

A child born on this day may possess much versatility and ability, which it will need to conquer difficulties and trials, but it should be grounded in tact.

American Underground

The story of the American "underground" is beginning to unfold with the landings in the Philippines. It is a story which makes civilian life in occupied Europe almost pleasant by comparison. Members of the European resistance could move abroad in daylight and live a semblance of normal life, at least until they were suspected. But American civilians in the Philippines knew only hiding and flight from an enemy even more brutal than the Nazis. White skin was a death warrant.

One story has been told of the civilian on Mindanao who escaped with his wife and child and lived and fought with Filipino guerrillas. When his wife became too ill to move and the Japs were approaching, he shot the woman and child. Then he turned his gun on the Japs and killed many before he himself was killed.

That is only one story, a story of tragedy and of humane courage. This man did not know when rescue might come, if ever. But he knew his enemy, and what awaited his wife at their hands. So he took her life and his child's, and gave up his own in a lonely, hopeless fight.

At home we have been hearing a cross-fire of charges to determine the responsibility for our unpreparedness in the Philippines. As these charges grow increasingly political let us not forget to examine them honestly and make sure that they are worthy both of the victims and the avengers.

Election year at least has brought out a lot of new "I" specialists.

To the bachelor life is just one undarned thing after another.

Need Rest? Maybe So and Maybe Not

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS THE intention of this column as often as possible to bring to its readers accounts of the latest advances in medicine. Some weeks this is not possible because these advances are too technical; they are of interest only to the practicing physician because they deal with diseases of such rarity that they would not be of general interest, or new treatments that only the physician should be allowed to prescribe, and to present them to the public would be only to pander to a morbid curiosity.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

But this week I find that the boys have been discussing the latest thing and it must be because it is right on the first pages of the Journal of the American Medical Association. It is also something I can let my public in on because it is something you all know about, or ought to know about. For this brand new subject that the boys have been discussing is that they want to know what rest is.

You would think that doctors would know what rest is. They say to about every third patient—"Well, you go home and rest and eat a light diet, and take this prescription. What you need is a good night's sleep and some rest." Yes, they have been saying that often enough so you would think they knew what they meant. But here they turn up and want to know what rest is.

Rest and Suppression Then they think that rest has been very much abused. We have used too much of it in the past. The cardinal advice to a patient with heart disease was always plenty of rest, but here the lead off article is about the abuse of rest for such patients and advice that graduated exercise is a good thing for them.

If there has been any one thing that has been impressed on the American people since the days of Wier Mitchell it is the advantage of the rest treatment for nervous invalids. But here comes my friend, Dr. Karl Menninger, of Topeka, in a very sensible article and says that such suppression is the worst thing that can happen to many patients whose nervousness is just an attempt to find an outlet for their personality.

Dr. Menninger has some good news for middle aged to elderly people who perhaps are labeled "high blood pressure" and proceed to be laid on the shelf by their doctors and families and business associates. The "rest" that is prescribed for these people Dr. Menninger thinks is poor judgment; what they need is to be allowed to satisfy their aggressive tendencies as much as possible. All of which, as I say, seems to me very humanitarian and sensible. In my experience as a consultant I have rescued many an old reprobate from the ministrations of a too conscientious younger colleague, from, in his own words, "this blankety blank bed, and this blankety blank veterinary and this blankety blank frustrated female who kept giving him nothing but a glass of blankety blank milk every blankety blank hour."

Research on Rest But all I have got to say now that I have retired is that if any of these high pressure boys get the steam up and give way to their aggressive tendencies I hope it will not be in the cafe where I am.

Well, when the boys got through abusing rest they began to ask just what rest really is—physical and mental. And Dr. Menninger suggested that next year they review the symposium and start out by defining rest. Well, I can help out on that symposium to the extent of telling them where rest isn't. It isn't anywhere near any hospital known to me with the motor cars and street cars beginning at five a. m. and the loud speaker blaring for "Dr. Johnson" and the nurse coming in at seven a. m. and putting her clammy hand under the nice warm cover to grab your wrist and take your pulse! And those sponge baths in bed! That is not rest—physical or mental!

Are animals being used to any extent in the present war?
 Yes. As an example, for the Burma frontier campaigns, the British have imported 60,000 animals, and more have been imported from Africa and Argentina. They are horses, mules, bullocks and camels.
 Has neutral Sweden done anything to aid Finland?
 More than 40,000 Finnish children have found haven in Sweden. The Swedes have promised to Finland 150,000 tons of grain, 100,000 tons of edible fats and 100,000 tons of fish.
 Do the Nazis rob King Victor Emmanuel of Italy of any of his treasures?
 He had one of the finest collections of coins in the world, placed safely in one of the royal villas in Turin. Nazi looters found it safe.
 How many neutral nations have announced they would refuse to supply war criminals?
 Portugal has now added Italy, Spain, Argentina, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland. This leaves only Elze, which will soon be in position in the matter.
 Has any head of a state approved the proposal of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that industries which can make material should be suppressed?
 President Roosevelt has said that the proposal should be broken up into separate stages.

Army To Be Sympathetic To War-Stricken Families

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 — The Army today promised "sympathetic consideration" to applications for returning to, or retaining in, the United States the sole surviving son of any family which has lost two or more sons in battle, except where the surviving son is on "non-hazardous duty."

Secretary of War Stimson announced the policy at a news conference. He said he had become aware of "tragic cases where a family sent two, three or four sons to service and lost all but one." This new policy, Stimson said, is "in recognition of the sacrifice and contribution" made by such families.

Cites Hitler's War Hopes
"He frankly acknowledged that a solution had not been reached in the long dispute between Russia and Poland."
"It is certainly not for want of trying," he said, adding: "I am quite sure, however, that we have got a great deal nearer to it."

But, he said, Britain, Russia and the United States, "are all firmly agreed on the recreation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbor and liberator, Russia."

He bluntly told commons that Adolf Hitler is pinning his hopes for winning the war on these two factors: "That by lengthening the struggle he may wear down our resolution and that division may arise between the three great powers."

Churchill said that Russia and Britain had reached "a very good working agreement" about Greece, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary.

That agreement, he said, was designed with the double objective of concentrating their efforts against "the common foe and providing so far as possible for a peaceful settlement after the war is over."

Bricker's address, one of a number made by state Republican leaders to pep precinct workers to get out the vote Nov. 7, also said:

"The (next) administration will determine, perhaps for generations to come, what the future of America will be. It will determine whether America once again can be united and prosperous and forward moving at home. Allied assault which already is boiling up.

This means that Nippon—already short of warships to guard her long and vulnerable communications to the East Indies—is still further weakened in this respect. Upon those communications rests her ability to continue the war, for she is dependent on Java and other Indonesian territory for numerous vital supplies. In short, those communications represent Japan's life-line.

So far as concerns Gen. MacArthur's invasion, it's hardly likely that the Japs will attempt another heavy stab at him by sea. Admittedly that's a great relief, for any big scale amphibious operation is vulnerable in its initial stages.

It would appear that MacArthur narrowly escaped a wholly nasty situation, for the Japanese attack was perfectly timed, and had it might have gone places. As it was, they were out-smarted and out-fought.

Professor Traces Origin of Names During Spare Time

(By United Press) — When William Shakespeare asked "What's in a name?" he couldn't have foreseen that A. H. Espenshade, professor-emeritus of English composition at Pennsylvania State College, would spend 40 years of research to supply him with an answer.

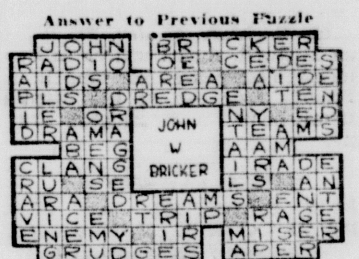

To the Bard's provoking question, Prof. Espenshade replies, "Just about everything." And he should know, having spent almost half a century tracing family names as his hobby.

Until the 12th and 13th century people used only their first names, Prof. Espenshade claims, but as the population increased, the supply of first names ran low and our ancestors were forced to choose surnames.

The majority of last names were derived from places, with the next largest group springing from occupations, Espenshade says. Even founding homes solved the problem of providing last names, for children were often given the name of the home that housed them.

A word of caution from the professor—some people, he believes, would be a lot better off if they didn't bother tracing the origin and literal meaning of their family names. Those people, he explains, are often disappointed if the literal meaning of their name turns out to be unflattering.

But, Shakespeare's question is still not completely answered, because even the expert professor says it's impossible to determine the origin of all names because some have been too badly warped by use.

Salem Girl, WAC Cook, Hopes To Run Restaurant After War

FORT BENNING, Ga., Oct. 27.—Before I joined the Army," says Nellie P. Christopher, of WAC Detachment Two, Infantry school, "I was a private cook. But since I've been in the Women's Army Corps I've learned to manage meals for such large numbers of people that I plan to go into the restaurant business after the war.

"I never realized how valuable my mess hall experience was until I went home on furlough in August, 1943. Two very good positions were offered me—one to run a mess hall and the other to go into a partnership with a restaurant owner. At one time I never thought myself qualified to accept either, but now I'm considering both very seriously as part of my post-war plans.

"You see," Nellie said as she prepared a large pan of baked beans for the detachment's supper, "in the Army I've seen how important it is for people who can't cook their own meals to have a good meal in a healthful surroundings. And civilians who eat in restaurants also have such a high morale. If I can make my morale as high as a WAC cook makes the morale of her detachment mates, I'll be very happy person after the war."

Joined WACS in August, 1943, Pfc. Christopher, who entered on active duty in August, 1943, has had cooking assignments on three different posts. After attending Cooks and Bakers school at Fort Monmouth, N. J., she cooked for two months at Camp Hood, Texas, before coming to Benning last May.

At all stations she has enjoyed her work "because the girls always show their appreciation for good cooking." In return, Nellie says, "the cooks and bakers delight in

by Hal Boyle

WITH THE AEF IN GERMANY
It is hard to make a hero out of Staff Sgt. William Kolosky.
When you ask Kolosky, who is chief clerk in a headquarters outfit, how he became the first soldier in this hard-hitting division to win the Distinguished Service Cross in Europe he just laughs and says:
"You mean that time I was scared stiff?"

He was scared stiff, too, that black night of July 30 near St. Denis Le Gast when a German column of more than 600 men and ten tanks attacked his headquarters company as it was pulling into a bivouac area.

The Germans were one of several units chopped to pieces in the great St. Lo breakthrough and they were trying desperately to surge through the thin American line.

Kolosky, who knows more about punching a typewriter than triggering a burp gun, won his medal for rallying a battle line of clerks, radio operators, draftsmen, messengers, interpreters and orderlies and repelling the German attack.

But the husky, blond son of Mrs. Stella Watkins of Chicago, wasn't thinking of winning medals when the German shells suddenly came whistling out of the darkness. Several vehicles went up in flames. Kolosky stretched his six-foot frame in a foxhole and decided there wasn't much chance of ever living to see his 26th birthday.

Assumes Command
"Nobody knew anything," he said. "We thought we were encircled and the Germans thought they were. We thought it was Custer's Last Stand for all of us. Some of these Krauts were drunk and they came at us whooping and yelling like Indians."

It was then Kolosky realized his entire outfit—none of the men were combat soldiers—would be wiped out unless they were rallied into a defense line. So he took over.

"I was scared—but I was going to fight for my life," he said. "I put on my gun and went around to the other foxholes and told everybody 'get off your tail and man a position.'"

He set up 30 and 50 caliber machineguns in the field and posted men with bazookas to handle enemy tanks. In a short while the little army he organized threw so much fire that the Germans were uncertain of the strength they faced and pulled back to await daylight.

Find 135 Dead Nazis
The next morning our artillery caught them before they could get moving and polished them off," he said. They also picked up 135 dead Jerries around the bivouac.

Kolosky did such a good job as a leader—he even bossed lieutenants and captains—that his commander offered to make him an officer. But the sergeant would have none of it.

"I just want to do my job and get back home," he declared. "I don't want to be an officer. I probably couldn't do what I did then again anyway. I was scared, but not as scared as some of the others. I just figured you have got to do something at a time like that. All I was doing was sweating out the daylight—I thought the sun would never come up."

Before that night Kolosky never had fired his gun in combat.
"But I took potshots at airplanes a couple of times," he asserted with a grin.
You can't make a hero out of Kolosky. He still laughs at the idea of a man as scared as he was being given the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS . . .

"We can't argue with the Judge on that point, can we Mabel? It's not fair to penalize the many for the actions of the few."

"That, folks, is exactly what we would be doing in this country if we ever voted for prohibition again. Authorities who have made a careful study of the problem, report that only about 5% of those who drink abuse the privilege occasionally...95% drink sensibly. Probably doesn't compare with the number of folks who overeat and do other things to excess. Prohibition certainly isn't the answer. It's not that simple. We had nearly 14 years proof of that, didn't we?"

"The real answer is education and better control. In fact, the responsible members of the distilling industry are working constantly toward that end. They don't want anybody to abuse the use of their product any more than the three of us do."

"If everybody would take that sensible attitude, Judge, and cooperate as more and more are now doing, we'd be a lot better off a lot quicker."

YOU GOTTA THINK QUICK

By Stanley Paley

FRIDAY noon Ginger called and asked me to come over. By the way she talked, friendly-like but at the same time with the proper degree of reserve, I knew Virgil was at her elbow.

The moment I entered the apartment it was apparent that whatever business he'd transacted in Chicago had turned out the way he'd wanted it to. I'd never seen him in such a jovial mood before. He was enthroned in an easy chair with his feet stretched out on a hassock. And instead of milk he was drinking coffee which was always a sign he was feeling chipper.

"How's the boy, Leo?" he exclaimed. "How's the boy?"

I mumbled something and sat down. His bubbling spirits and the foolish wisecracks he started to make irritated me. If he'd wanted me to come on business why didn't he get going. But he was in no hurry.

"What's this Ginger's been telling me about a new apartment?"

"I thought I'd move. It's a bit better than the other place."

He burst into laughter. "Hear that, Ginger? A bit better, he says. The Columbus Towers after that boarding house. A bit better! Boy, you're coming up in the world!"

"I didn't like the tone of his voice."

"That's not all," I said. "I suppose you also know about the car?"

"The what?"

She'd probably forgotten that.

"Come and take a look," I said. He pushed himself out of the chair and followed me into the kitchen. It overlooked the Chalfont parking lot.

"Right there, the blue convertible."

He opened his mouth but I stopped him.

"No speeches please, Virgil. I know what you're going to say. There's plenty of time for all these things. I'm young, and when you were my age—I know it by heart."

We returned to the living room and he dropped into his chair, slowly shaking his head.

"How was the trip?" I inquired.

"Fine! Come here, Ginger."

She got up from the sofa on which she'd been sprawling, slipped her feet into a pair of fancy mules and came over to sit on the arm of Boggio's chair.

"Show Leo the watch Daddy brought you from Chicago."

That was Boggio! Bellyaching about the way I spent dough one minute and in the next boasting about his generosity. The watch was worth a cool two thousand if I knew anything about jewelry.

"Platinum and diamonds," he said proudly. "Fifteen hundred it cost me. Wholesale."

Ginger beamed. "Now I'll always know what time it is," she said childishly.

There was something about her attitude that I didn't like. From the moment I'd entered the apartment I'd noticed she was having a wonderful time. She'd look at Boggio, then at me, then back again at him as if she were secretly enjoying the situation. The very thing that made me uncomfortable was giving her a terrific kick.

I've always despised cheats, and the fact that I was acting like one didn't make me particularly proud. I was actor enough to look Boggio straight in the face, but all in all the situation was extremely distasteful to me. Ginger, on the other hand, was obviously relishing the game.

Boggio was having a regular picnic. He winked at me and then said, "How about giving Daddy another kiss because he's come home and he's so good to Ginger?"

Unable to stand it any longer, I got up.

"I'll be running along, Virgil."

Boggio took his time before replying, then, with his arm around Ginger's waist and his cheek snuggled up close to hers, he looked at me.

"What's the hurry?"

"Look, Virgil," I said. "There are a couple of things I wanted to do this afternoon. If you haven't anything special to say to me I can come back some other time. Tomorrow maybe."

"No. There's something I want to show you right now."

He took his arm away from Ginger's waist and she got up. Then he reached for a portfolio lying beside him. He motioned to me and I followed him into the bedroom. It was funny how reluctant he always was to mention business in front of Ginger.

Boggio produced a bunch of keys and carefully unlocked the portfolio. I watched him as he fumbled through a thick sheaf of papers.

I was fascinated by his ugliness. The thin, mean lips. Furtive eyes. A faint white scar on the right cheek.

"Read this," he said suddenly.

It was the draft of a contract pertaining to the purchase of the controlling interest in a pinball machine factory. I scanned the various paragraphs, then looked up at him.

"Seems to be all right."

"There are a few things I have to tell you, though. The purchase won't be in my name. I'll use a straw man and make out another agreement with him. But we'll have to be very careful because I don't want to have to beat any income tax rap."

"Sure," I said. "I can fix it."

He then went into more explanations, giving me just enough data so that I could understand, but being careful to withhold certain details. For the time being I put Ginger out of my mind.

Ration Board To Hold Apparel Price Survey

Volunteer Price Panel assistants are scheduled to complete a survey of retail prices on work gloves in this area before Nov. 1, the Ration board announced today.

First of a series of apparel surveys, intended to help the merchant in complying with price ceilings on work clothing, it is conducted by volunteer workers purely in the spirit of cooperation between merchants and consumers.

Reports from workers and merchants on the surveys thus far are exceedingly gratifying. The cooperation has been 100 per cent and merchants find the volunteer worker can give them a lot of help in checking their prices and "no one appreciates the need for a sound price control program better than the retailer" one merchant commented.

Salem High Notches Fifth Win Of Year, 20-6, Against Girard

Barrettmens Discover New Backfield Gem -- Leach -- In Thrilling Encounter

Although they were not in their best defensive form of the year, the Salem Quakers posted their fifth win of the year, 20 to 6, over Girard last night and at the same time uncovered a gem of a ball carrier—Jay Leach—who galloped with glee all over the Indian gridiron to the amazement of some 3,000 chilled fans.

Displaying an uncanny hole-finding ability, speed and side-stepping that had Girard baffled, Leach rolled up 111 yards gain, two touchdowns and a 65-yard sprint that was called back because of backfield motion, in 10 tries at ball toting. His average gain in the nine countable runs was 12 1/3 yards per play—the best by far from a back this season.

Although the Redskins took the opposite kickoff on their own 38 yard line and drove straight down the field in 13 plays to score and take the lead, 6-0, Leach put the Quakers back in the ball game on the first Salem offensive try.

He scooted off left tackle, cut back, wiggled and danced his way 58 yards on the first play to tie the score. It was a spectacular run with good blocking opening the original hole for him, but his own ingenuity accounted for the last 40 yards of the gain.

Probably the most sensational run of the season was made by the ex-quarterback—shifted to fullback just this week by Coach Ben Barrett—in the fourth quarter, when he dashed 65 yards through Girard's left tackle, cut back and went through seven would-be tacklers and out-raced three other men to the Indian 23, where a chance grab at his sweater pulled him down. It was a marvelous exhibition of open field running.

Also outstanding last night for Salem was Ray Kelly, who dashed 20 yards to set up one score in the second quarter and gained 22 yards again in the third to make the third touchdown possible. The Quaker halfback, who replaced Bob Boone in the early part of the contest, turned in his best ball carrying of the year and showed his usual creditable defensive game.

The Salem line, though not up to par in the first quarter, turned in a good performance when the entire game is considered. In the fourth stanza, the forward wall proved impregnable two vital times, once when Girard was on the Salem two yard line and again when they were down to the nine. Both times the Quakers held for downs, thus avoiding the count. At one time in the second quarter the Quaker line held on the six and the Quakers avoided being tied at the half.

One glaring weakness appeared in Salem's offensive threats as time and time again had passes from center hindered the performance of the Quaker ball carriers. On three occasions, Francis Lanney, back to punt, was forced to change his plans and run the ends because of bad passes. Had it not been third down the miscues would have been more costly.

Girard's shining lights last night were short, scrappy Harry DePietro and big strapping Bill Michaels, left and right halfbacks. DePietro had the Quaker linemen snatching in vain on many tries and his shifty, speedy running was a continual threat to Quaker defense.

Michaels, who did the punting, also crashed the line with his 175 pounds to good effect. His partner on passing plays was Sam Chiswick, who tossed the ball accurately enough to gain 83 yards on six completed throws. He missed five times and the Quakers intercepted twice.

Girard started things off in a hurry, taking the kickoff on their own 38 marching down the field in 13 plays to score. Harry DePietro went over from the Salem one for the tally and Michaels was smothered on a pass play for the extra try. It was 6-0.

Salem came back on the kickoff, Leach going his 58 yards through the full Indian squad for the score on the first play. Lanney placekicked one high and perfect for the extra and it was 7-6.

Girard was far from beaten—even after that sudden shock. The Redskins drove from their own 36 after the kickoff to Salem's 31, where Ray Kelly split the air to grab one of Michaels' passes and end what might have been a serious threat.

Michaels set the Salemites back on their heels as the first quarter ended by quick-kicking 83 yards and the oval stopped dead just one inch from Salem's goal line. From there Lanney kicked out to his own 31 and Girard drove right down to the Salem six before losing the ball on downs.

After an exchange of punts Salem started their second touchdown march. Taking over after Michaels kicked to the Quaker 48, the locals marched down the field to score in eight plays.

A dash of 12 yards through left tackle by Leach brought the ball to the Girard 49, where a roughing penalty on the Redskins moved the ball 15 more to the 34. On the next play Kelly nearly got loose but was stopped on the 13 after going 20 yards off-tackle.

Lanney picked up six on a reverse off the other tackle and Leach collected four to the Girard three. From there he went over on the next play on a reverse through left tackle. Lanney's kick was blocked by End Walter Aho and it was Salem 13, Girard 6.

The half ended as big Bill Michaels, threatening once again, got to the Salem 19 yard stripe on a 19 yard end skirt. Ray Kelly stopped Michaels after Lanney had kicked him enough to slow him down. Girard kicked-off at the half and Sensational!

Jay Leach

Looking like Michigan's Tom Harmon as he scooted hither and yon among Girard tacklers, Jay Leach, senior veteran quarterback now playing fullback for Salem, posted the best ball carrying record of the season last night as Salem downed Girard 20-6.

Scoring two Quaker six-pointers and dashing 65 yards in the final period on one of the prettiest runs seen in this district, the 153-pound Quaker had a crowd of some 3,000 fans on their feet every time he toled the oval.

In nine tries Leach piled up 111 yards gain—an average of 12 and one-third yards per play. Had his 65 yard dash been counted, he would have averaged 18 yards per play. Some running for his first night out as fullback!

HARRISON SEEKING OHIO COLLEGE TOP GUESSING HONORS

Picks Denison Over Miami, Otterbein, Capital and Ohio State

BY HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—Never mind handing down the crystal ball this week. Jeeves, we'll just go it alone in the football picking business.

That bit of glass bric-a-brac deserves a rest, in view of the way it performed last week. There were nine games on the program and seven of the predictions turned out to be correct. There was one error and one tie.

All of which sent the picking average upward from .714 to an even .750.

So without using crystal ball, mirrors or the old coin trick we give you these week-end winners: Otterbein at West Virginia Tech—

Week's Gridiron Games

Friday
East at South
Boardman at East Palestine
Warren at Massillon
Goshen at Saltilloville
Saturday
Fitch at Brookfield
Lectonia at Lisbon
Canfield at Poland

Otterbein beat Muskingum, 12 to 7, and Muskingum beat West Virginia Tech, 6 to 0, using a little simple mathematics, that figures up to Otterbein by 11 points but we'll just settle for Otterbein to win by anything from one point up.

Ohio Again
Minnesota at Ohio State—The form sheet would indicate the Bucks to win in a breeze but rarely does anyone whip Minnesota that easily. The Gophers are pointing for this one, too, but we'll stay right on that Ohio State bandwagon.

Capital at Muskingum—Here's a chance to become "expert" Muskingum whipped Capital by two touchdowns in their first game but without disclosing any reasons for the choice, it's Capital to square the season's series.

Denison-Miami at Dayton—Using arithmetic again, Miami figures to be six points better than Denison off their games with Oberlin. This time, however, we'll discard the figures and pick Denison. Denison's ties with Oberlin is beginning to look more and more like one of those things that frequently happen in the best regulated football circles.

POTTERS UPSET PURPLE RAIDERS, WIN 14-0 ROUT

Upset Eliminates Ferrrians As Team With Untouchable Goal

EAST LIVERPOOL, Oct. 27.—Martins Ferry, until last night one of the four unscored on, tied and unbeaten teams in Ohio, dropped heavily by the wayside, 14-0, as the East Liverpool Potters rolled with surprising ease to their fifth victory in seven starts before nearly 8,000 fans at Patterson field. It was the first win over Martins Ferry in seven years.

Score In Last Half

In the third period, starting from the kickoff, nine straight offensive thrusts tallied the first marker for East Liverpool. A pass, Ed Ward to End Jerry Hager, set things in motion, and Alonzo Spencer, shifty Negro back, galloped for 24 yards to the visitors 13-yard line. Here short thrusts by Spencer and Henry Pack going over for the four, made the score. Rudy Trbovich booted the extra point.

The Purple Raiders took to the air and Spencer intercepted on his own 35 and returned 47 yards to the Ferry 18 before he was brought down. Two plays, Ward off tackle for 10 yards to the eight and Pack on a cross back from the T-formation got the remaining yardage and the six points. Trbovich made the point.

East Liverpool netted 131 yards to just 13 from scrimmage for the Purple Raiders and chalked up 12 first downs to 8 for the opponents. The Raiders connected on 9 of 18 passes for 118 yards while Liverpool got 68 through the air.

ROBERTSON PICKS WINNERS FOR WEEK

Scribe Takes Army, Navy, Ohio, Irish, Purdue And Indiana

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—If Navy, California, Marquette, U. C. L. and the Texas Aggies hadn't let us down last week we would have had a perfect performance of course no selector counts ties as defeats. So feeling pretty good over a record of 31 victories, five defeats and four ties we plunge into this week's lineup:

Duke-Army—The experts say this will be the Cadets' first real test. Maybe so, but we look for them to win by three or four touchdowns. Army.

Navy-Pennsylvania—It's Penn's hard luck that the Middles won everything but the game at Georgia Tech last week. This Navy team is overdue. With proper respect for undefeated Penn outfit we'll string along with the Navy.

Takes Irish

Notre Dame-Illinois—Wisconsin showed that the Irish could be scored against. Buddy Young or one of his speedy mates probably will do the same for the Illini but it'll be Notre Dame's fifth straight victory.

Minnesota-Ohio State—How can one pick against the Bucks after they showed such power in knocking off Great Lakes, Ohio State.

Great Lakes-Wisconsin—Lt. J. C. Paul Brown isn't in the habit of losing two straight games and his sailors dropped a decision to Ohio State last week. Great Lakes.

Iowa-Indiana—The Hawkeyes haven't what it takes to stop Hunch Hoernschmeyer and his mates. Indiana.

MILWAUKEE—Marquette university football players are accustomed to the cry "Uncle!" but that doesn't mean they're giving up. Members of Coach Tom E. Stidham's Hilltop squad boast collectively of 32 nephews and 19 nieces.

Salem High Notches Fifth Win Of Year, 20-6, Against Girard

Barrettmens Discover New Backfield Gem -- Leach -- In Thrilling Encounter

Although they were not in their best defensive form of the year, the Salem Quakers posted their fifth win of the year, 20 to 6, over Girard last night and at the same time uncovered a gem of a ball carrier—Jay Leach—who galloped with glee all over the Indian gridiron to the amazement of some 3,000 chilled fans.

Displaying an uncanny hole-finding ability, speed and side-stepping that had Girard baffled, Leach rolled up 111 yards gain, two touchdowns and a 65-yard sprint that was called back because of backfield motion, in 10 tries at ball totting. His average gain in the nine countable runs was 12 1/3 yards per play—the best by far from a back this season.

Although the Redskins took the opposite kickoff on their own 38 yard line and drove straight down the field in 13 plays to score and take the lead, 6-0, Leach put the Quakers back in the ball game on the first Salem offensive try.

He scooted off left tackle, cut back, wiggled and danced his way 58 yards on the first play to tie the score. It was a spectacular run with good blocking opening the original hole for him, but his own ingenuity accounted for the last 40 yards of the gain.

Probably the most sensational run of the season was made by the ex-quarterback—shifted to fullback just this week by Coach Ben Barrett—in the fourth quarter, when he dashed 65 yards through Girard's left tackle, cut back and went through seven would-be tacklers and out-raced three other men to the Indian 23, where a chance grab at his sweater pulled him down. It was a marvelous exhibition of open field running.

Also outstanding last night for Salem was Ray Kelly, who dashed 20 yards to set up one score in the second quarter and gained 22 yards again in the third to make the third touchdown possible. The Quaker halfback, who replaced Bob Boone in the early part of the contest, turned in his best ball carrying of the year and showed his usual creditable defensive game.

The Salem line, though not up to par in the first quarter, turned in a good performance when the end tire game is considered. In the fourth stanza, the forward wall proved impregnable two vital times, once when Girard was on the Salem two yard line and again when they were down to the nine. Both times the Quakers held for downs, thus avoiding scores that might have knotted the count. At one time in the second quarter the Quaker line held on the six and the Quakers avoided being tied at the half.

One glaring weakness appeared in Salem's offensive threats as time and time again bad passes from center hindered the performance of the Quaker ball carriers. On three occasions, Francis Lanney, back to punt, was forced to change his plans and run the ends because of bad passes. Had it not been third down the miscues would have been more costly.

Girard's shining lights last night were short, scrappy Harry DePietro and big strapping Bill Michaels, left and right halfbacks. DePietro had the Quaker linemen snatching in vain on many tries and his shifty, speedy running was a continual threat to Quaker defense. Michaels, who did the punting, also crashed the line with his 175 pounds to good effect. His partner on passing plays was Sam Chicarelli, who tossed them accurately enough to gain 83 yards on six completed throws. He missed five times and the Quakers intercepted twice. Girard started things off in a hurry, taking the kickoff on their own 38 marching down the field in 13 plays to score. Harry DePietro went over from the Salem one for the tally and Michaels was smothered on a pass play for the extra try. It was 6-0.

Salem came back on the kickoff, Leach going his 58 yards through the full Indian squad for the score on the first play. Lanney placed-kicked one high and perfect for the extra and it was 7-6.

Girard was far from beaten—even after that sudden shock. The Redskins drove from their own 36 after the kickoff to Salem's 31, where Ray Kelly split the air to grab one of Michaels' passes and end what might have been a serious threat.

Michaels set the Salemites back on their heels as the first quarter ended by quick-kicking 53 yards and the oval stopped dead just one inch from Salem's goal line. From there Lanney kicked out to his own 31 and Girard drove right down to the Salem six before losing the ball on downs.

After an exchange of punts Salem started their second touchdown march. Taking over after Michaels kicked to the Quaker 48, the locals marched down the field to score in eight plays.

A dash of 12 yards through left tackle by Leach brought the ball to the Girard 49, where a roughing penalty on the Redskins moved the ball 15 more to the 34. On the next play Kelly nearly got loose but was stopped on the 13 after going 20 yards off-tackle.

Lanney kicked off six on a reverse off the other tackle and Leach collected four to the Girard three. From there he went over on the next play on a reverse through left tackle. Lanney's kick was blocked by End Walter Aho and it was Salem 13, Girard 6.

The half ended as big Bill Michaels, threatening once again, got to the Salem 19 yard stripe on a 19 yard end skirt. Ray Kelly stopped Michaels after Lanney had kicked him enough to slow him down. Girard kicked-off at the half and Sensational!

Jay Leach

Looking like Michigan's Tom Harmon as he scooted hither and yon among Girard tacklers, Jay Leach, senior veteran quarterback now playing fullback for Salem, posted the best ball carrying record of the season last night as Salem downed Girard 20-6.

Scoring two Quaker six-pointers and dashing 65 yards in the final period on one of the prettiest runs seen in this district, the 153-pound Quaker had a crowd of some 3,000 fans on their feet every time he toted the oval.

In nine tries Leach piled up 111 yards gain—an average of 12 and one-third yards per play. Had his 65 yard dash been counted, he would have averaged 18 yards per play. Some running for his first night out as fullback!

HARRISON SEEKING OHIO COLLEGE TOP GUESSING HONORS

Picks Denison Over Miami, Otterbein, Capital and Ohio State

BY HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Oct. 27.—Never mind handing down the crystal ball this week, Jeeves, we'll just go it alone in the football picking business.

That bit of glass bric-a-brac deserves a rest, in view of the way it performed last week. There were nine games on the program and seven of the predictions turned out to be correct. There was one error and one tie.

All of which sent the picking average upward from 714 to an even 750.

So without using crystal ball, mirrors or the old coin trick we give you these week-end winners:

Otterbein at West Virginia Tech—

Week's Gridiron Games
Friday
East at South	100	100	100
Boardman at East Palestine	100	100	100
Warren at Massillon	100	100	100
Goshen at Salineville	100	100	100
Saturday
Fitch at Brookfield	100	100	100
Leontina at Lisbon	100	100	100
Canfield at Poland	100	100	100

Otterbein beat Muskingum, 12 to 7, and Muskingum beat West Virginia Tech, 6 to 0, using a little simple mathematics, that figures up to Otterbein by 11 points but we'll just settle for Otterbein to win by anything from one point up.

Ohio Again
Minnesota at Ohio State—The form sheet would indicate the Bucks to win in a breeze but rarely does anyone whip Minnesota that easily. The Gophers are pointing for this one, too, but we'll stay right on that Ohio State bandwagon.

Capital at Muskingum—Here's a chance to become "expert" Muskingum whipped Capital by two touchdowns in their first game but without disclosing any reasons for the choice, it's Capital to square the season's series.

Denison-Miami at Dayton—Using arithmetic again, Miami figures to be six points better than Denison of their games with Oberlin. This time, however, we'll discard the figures and pick Denison. Denison's ties with Oberlin is beginning to look more and more like one of those things that frequently happen in the best regulated football circles.

found Salem ready for hard and sure action. The Quakers took over on their own 43 and used just eight plays again to go 57 yards for the final score of the game.

Once again Ray Kelly sparked the scoring thrusts with a 22 yard dash to the Girard 34. On this play—the first of the half—Kelly reversed through left tackle and was in the clear, but DePietro nabbed him to stave off the score.

Leach got six off left tackle, Lanney picked up four and Kelly added six to bring the ball to the 18. Here Leach shot off right guard for 13 yards—and he shot like a streak of lightning. Paparodis and Lanney tried the center of the line but didn't get any place. It looked like the thrust was stopped, as it was third and goal on the Girard five.

However, the old faithful play—which has scored five times for Salem this year—a pass, Tom Paparodis to Walt Brian was good for five yards and the score. Brian went untouched over left end. Lanney kicked another perfect extra and it was 20-6.

After the kickoff to Girard one of the strangest series of exchanges ever seen on a dry field occurred as the Quakers and Indians both developed "butter-fingers" and kept handing the ball back and forth for several minutes.

In nine plays, four fumbles and a pass interception occurred. The ball changed hands five times and no one seemed to be getting anywhere. Jimmie Appedisan finally finished the thing by intercepting a Girard pass on the Salem 30 yard marker.

Still not beaten as the final quarter began, the Indians pushed to the Salem two yard line on passes, two of which netted 37 yards as a result of an effective Chicarelli to Michaels combination over right end. Here the Quakers held and Lanney, after two line plays, got off his poorest boot of the evening. It was good for only 10 yards, going out of bounds on the Salem 18.

With about four minutes to go the Indians pushed again—this time losing the ball on downs on the Salem nine yard line. Salem then took over and on the first play, Leach broke through the line for his spectacular 65 yard dash to the Girard 23 yard line—but it was called back because the backfield was in motion before the ball was snapped.

An exchange of kicks found Salem on the 35 yard line, from where Lanney kicked as the horn sounded.

MERCHANDISE

YOU GOTTA THINK QUICK

By Stanley Paley

Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

FRIDAY noon Ginger called and asked me to come over. By the way she talked, friendly-like but at the same time with the proper degree of reserve, I knew Virgil was at her elbow.

The moment I entered the apartment it was apparent that whatever business he'd transacted in Chicago had turned out the way he'd wanted it to. I'd never seen him in such a jovial mood before. He was enthroned in an easy chair with his feet stretched out on a hassock. And instead of milk he was drinking coffee which was always a sign he was feeling chipper.

"How's the boy, Leo?" he exclaimed. "How's the boy?" I mumbled something and sat down. His bubbling spirits and the foolish wisecracks he started to make irritated me. If he'd wanted me to come on business why didn't he get going. But he was in no hurry.

"What's this Ginger's been telling me about a new apartment?" "I thought I'd move. It's a bit better than the other place."

He burst into laughter. "Hear that, Ginger? A bit better, he says. The Columbus Towers after that boarding house. A bit better! Boy, you're coming up in the world!"

"I didn't like the tone of his voice."

"That's not all," I said. "I suppose you also know about the car?"

"The what?" She'd probably forgotten that.

"Come and take a look," I said. He pushed himself out of the chair and followed me into the kitchen. It overlooked the Chalfont parking lot.

"Right there, the blue convertible."

He opened his mouth but I stopped him.

"No speeches please, Virgil. I know what you're going to say. There's plenty of time for all these things. I'm young, and when you were my age—I know it by heart."

We returned to the living room and he dropped into his chair, slowly shaking his head.

"How was the trip?" I inquired.

"Fine! Come here, Ginger."

She got up from the sofa on which she'd been sprawling, slipped her feet into a pair of fancy mules and came over to sit on the arm of Boggio's chair.

"Show Leo the watch Daddy brought you from Chicago."

That was Boggio! Belying about the way I spent dough one minute and in the next boasting about his generosity. The watch was worth a cool two thousand if I knew anything about jewelry.

"Platinum and diamonds," he said proudly. "Fifteen hundred it cost me. Wholesale."

Ginger beamed. "Now I'll always know what time it is," she said childishly.

There was something about her attitude that I didn't like. From the moment I'd entered the apartment I'd noticed she was having a wonderful time. She'd look at Boggio, then at me, then back again at him as if she were secretly enjoying the situation. The very thing that made me uncomfortable was giving her a terrific kick.

I've always despised cheats, and the fact that I was acting like one didn't make me particularly proud. I was actor enough to look Boggio straight in the face, but all in all the situation was extremely distasteful to me. Ginger, on the other hand, was obviously relishing the game.

Boggio was having a regular picnic. He winked at me and then said, "How about giving Daddy another kiss because he's come home and he's so good to Ginger?"

Unable to stand it any longer, I got up.

"I'll be running along, Virgil."

Boggio took his time before replying, then, with his arm around Ginger's waist and his cheek snuggled up close to hers, he looked at me.

"What's the hurry?"

"Look, Virgil," I said. "There are a couple of things I wanted to do this afternoon. If you haven't anything special to say to me I can come back some other time. Tomorrow maybe."

"No. There's something I want to show you right now."

He took his arm away from Ginger's waist and she got up. Then he reached for a portfolio lying beside him. He motioned to me and I followed him into the bedroom. It was funny how reluctant he always was to mention business in front of Ginger.

Boggio produced a bunch of keys and carefully unlocked the portfolio. I watched him as he fumbled through a thick sheaf of papers.

I was fascinated by his ugliness. The thin, mean lips. Furtive eyes. A faint white scar on the right cheek.

"Read this," he said suddenly.

It was the draft of a contract pertaining to the purchase of the controlling interest in a pinball machine factory. I scanned the various paragraphs, then looked up at him.

"Seems to be all right."

"There are a few things I have to tell you, though. The purchase won't be in my name. I'll use a straw man and make out another agreement with him. But we'll have to be very careful because I don't want to have to beat any income tax rap."

"Sure," I said. "I can fix it." He then went into more explanations, giving me just enough data so that I could understand, but being careful to withhold certain details. For the time being I put Ginger out of my mind.

Ration Board To Hold Apparel Price Survey

Volunteer Price Panel assistants are scheduled to complete a survey of retail prices on work gloves in this area before Nov. 1, the Ration board announced today.

First of a series of apparel surveys, intended to help the merchant in complying with price ceilings on work clothing, it is conducted by volunteer workers purely in the spirit of cooperation between merchants and consumers.

Reports from workers and merchants on the surveys thus far are exceedingly gratifying. The cooperation has been 100 per cent and merchants find the volunteer worker can give them a lot of help in checking their prices and "no one appreciates the need for a sound price control program better than the retailer," one merchant commented.

The U. S. Navy now numbers more than 3,650,000.
